Lumnify allows IT recruiters to efficiently pre-screen candidates based on their actual work, before spending time testing them in depth. You save hours of testing and reviewing candidates, and so speeding up your hiring process, and meeting face-to-face only with the best.

Why Lumnify?

With Lumnify, you can ditch those time-consuming mediocre tests, and take a real look into your potential candidates. What work have they actually accomplished? What open source contributions have they made? And how clean and maintainable is their code? We help you sift through the sea of candidates, making the rest of your hiring process easier.

Lumnify reports

Our reports assess potential candidates with the following three factors:

- 1. Skills ranking: Based on the candidate's own project repositories, the skills ranking shows you what languages they've used to code, and assesses the quality of that code. Code quality is ranked relatively against the quality of other public repositories, so you can see how they measure up compared to other developers.
- 2. Collaboration ranking: Assess the quality and frequency of the candidate's contributions to other people's projects. This is based on an aggregated number of factors such as ideas provided, features implemented, what bugs have they fixed, issues reported, and more. Like skills ranking, this is also ranked relatively against other developers with open source repositories.
- 3. Total ranking: Candidates are ranked relatively against other developers based on multiple factors including code quality, languages known, and how maintainable their code is. Find out if your candidate is a Wizard or Scholar of Lumnify! You get a bird's eye view of the candidate, helping you decide whether to shortlist them and move forward with their application.

Why waste time testing so many candidates before you know which ones would really be worth testing in the first place? We help you save time and money, ensuring you talk only to the best candidates. Get started with Lumnify today!
